Hope is always present in the midst of darkness

Laura St. Jude (born April 2, 1992) is a singer, songwriter and musician based in Glasgow, Scotland. Laura is a romantic realist. She dredges the depths of melancholy without succumbing to the banalities of self-pity, showing the listener that hope is always present in the midst of darkness.

Laura will soon release a 7" Double A-side on Off Label Records, recorded and mastered at Green Door Studio, Glasgow. The release features 'I Can't Stop Loving You' and 'Yours to Destroy', both songs written by Laura St. Jude.

In 2014 Laura shared a stage with Joan as Policewoman and The Amazing Snakeheads, among many others. St. Jude plays armed with her telecaster and full band accompaniment made up of, guitarist Dale Barclay, Bass player Roddie McGrath and drummer/backing vocalist Jennifer Hamilton.

Over the past two years, Laura has toured extensively with rock n roll band The Amazing Snakeheads, providing guest vocals, guitar and percussion, both in the UK and in Europe; the highlight of which was support shows with Jack White in Paris and London. She also co-wrote The Amazing Snakeheads B-side, 'The Bullfighter' with frontman and lover Dale Barclay. The Bullfighter was released on Domino Records in 2014.

In 2012 Laura self-released her debut EP 'Fatal' with a former band of musicians, of which Jennifer Hamilton survives.

'This Scottish singer songwriter's emotional torch songs sound like the soundtrack to a gothic Wild West movie, and they're utterly immersive' - (Breaking More Waves)

"Laura St Jude is blessed with a rich, evocative voice that silences the room from the moment she begins" - (The Skinny)

"Sultry, crisp vocals well beyond her years, St. Jude toys with the listener like a femme Black Widow does her mate just before entirely devouring him." (National Collective)
